The First Published Proceedings of an American Legislature

By A. R. HASSE

NEW YORK may well be pardoned for appreciating the distinction, which is hers, of being the first among the American colonies to publish legislative proceedings. None other of the colonies can produce proceedings published in the seventeenth century. Few are able to collate files as continuous as are those which have recently been collated for New York.<sup>a</sup>

New Jersey may have printed earlier than 1700, but, at the present time, her earliest printed votes, known to be extant, are those of 1710. The earliest printed votes of Massachusetts are those of 1715.<sup>b</sup> Of the other colonies, Maryland first printed legislative proceedings in 1729, Virginia in 1732, New Hampshire in 1744, Pennsylvania in 1768, Georgia in 1769, and North Carolina in 1787. In Delaware the first press established was that of James Adams at Wilmington in 1761; in South Carolina no printing was done before 1730, the Connecticut votes were not printed until the nineteenth century, and the Rhode Island votes probably not until the nineteenth century.

The first attempt to secure the printing of the votes in New York was made in the House of Assembly on April 12, 1695, when it was ordered that the House address his Excellency, Governor Fletcher, for leave "to print the Journal of this House, this Sessions; and that the Clerk of this House do acquaint the Printer therewith; and that Capt. Filkin [Kings county] and Capt. Van Rensselaer [Rensselaer Wyck] do wait upon his Excellency with this address." On the next day it was further ordered "that the Speaker of this House take care of the Minutes of this House, and endeavour to get them printed." On this day, April 13, the Governor addressed the Council and House jointly, saying in his speech: "You now desire lycense to print the Votes. Mr. Speaker knows at the opening of the sessions, if I may call it one, I told him they might be printed de die in diem; but it never was asked before." There the matter rested for the time being, for later in the day the Governor prorogued the legislature to meet again on April 23, and on April 22 he dissolved the legislature by proclamation.

The first session of the fifth legislature of the colony met on June 20, 1695, and on June 22 it was "Ordered, that his Excellency be addressed to order the printer to print the daily votes of this House, at the public charge," and Messrs. Reade [New York City] and Sebring [Kings county] were appointed a committee to wait upon Governor Fletcher with the address. Before the close of that day's session the committee returned to the House, and reported that "his Excellency is very willing the daily Votes of this House should be printed at the public charge, but hopes that the House, before (the Session ended) will allow the Printer something of farther Encouragement, than that already Established."

The printer's salary at this time was £40 per annum, payable quarterly.

Later on the same day, June 22, the House ordered, "That the Votes of this House be daily Printed, and that the Speaker shall Issue out of his Warrant, to the King's Printer, to print the same, at the public charge accordingly."

While the edition of these votes was probably comparatively very small, the additional burden imposed upon a printer paid not by the job, but by the year, was sufficient to have suggested to the legislators the propriety of an increase in the printer's allowance.

The proceedings of the Assembly of July 3, 1695, record that "The House of Representatives, now convened in the General Assembly, do humbly address his Excellency and Council, and pray that they will allow, unto William Bradford, his Majesty's Printer for this Province, the yearly salary of 20 Pounds Current Money of the Province, over and above, the Salary already allowed him, by his Excellency and Council." And Col. Beekman [Ulster county], Maj. Howell [Suffolk county], Mr. Reade [New York city and county], Capt. Whitehead [Queen's county], Maj. Demiere [Ulster county], and Mr. Van Rensselaer [Rensselaer Wyck] were appointed a committee to wait on his Excellency and the Council with the address.

The address was received and read in Council on July 4, 1765.

No action was taken, however, and the session was adjourned on the same day. In Council meeting on July 11, 1695, the additional allowance of £20 was ordered paid to Bradford pursuant to the petition in the address of the House. No provision was made for the distribution of the votes, but the method of payment to the printer renders it wholly unlikely that any copies over and above those immediately necessary were printed.

There were at the time nineteen Representatives returned to serve in the General Assembly, and ten Councillors sat in the Upper House. These, together with the Governor, probably comprised the entire constituency for which the printed votes were destined. Of these inferential thirty copies, none are known at the time of this writing to be extant in the United States, and, until the discovery of the copy from which the present facsimile reprint was made, it was supposed that none had survived. The only evidence of the existence at one time of printed votes of this period was the record of the order to print in the manuscript votes and in the Lott reprint.

The copy from which the present facsimile has been made, is deposited in the Public Record Office, London, and was there discovered by the writer on November 11, 1902. The copy as found is perfect, containing the entire proceedings of the Assembly during the first session of the fifth legislature, i. e., from June 20 to July 4, 1695. Taking into consideration the date of issue, and the absence of typographical imperfections which mar some of Bradford's later work, this print may be accepted as representing, in all respects, a very good example of Bradford's work at its best.

A Bill to enable the Representatives of the County of Westchester to receive their allowance, according to Act of General Assembly, &c. was, according to the Order of the House yesterday, brought in and read, and ordered a second reading.

The said Bill was read the second time, and ordered to be engrossed.

The aforesaid Bill to enable the Representatives of the County of Westchester, was read the third time, and passed, and ordered to be sent up to the Governour and Council for their assent.

Ordered, That Mr. Underhill and Mr. Purdy do wait upon his Excellency and Council with the said Bill, for their assent.

Coll. Caleb Heathcote and William Pinhorn, Esq; brought a Message to the House from his Excellency and Council, with the Bills for preventing Deserters, &c. and the Bill for encouraging of Sea-men, with the Amendments annexed, and desire this House to consent to the same.

The House took into Consideration the Amendments annexed to the Act for encouraging of Sea-men, and agree to the same.

Order'd, That Mr. Read and Mr. Abee, do carry up the Bill for encouraging of Sea-men, with the amendments.

The House of Representatives taking into Consideration the Amendments sent down by his Excellency and Council, with the Bill entitled, A Bill for preventing the deserting of his Majesties Service, &c. and cannot agree to the first Amendment, for the changing the Title of the said Bill, because this House did frame the Bill

Bill on purpose only for such of the Forces that arrived to be employed for his Majesties Service in this Province, and for none other, except such as should list themselves for the future in the said Companies.

They likewise cannot agree to the second Amendment, because the Preamble sets forth the Reason why the Bill was fram'd, and the Bill was only made to discourage those on'y Forces from deserting the said Service, and to correct and punish such of the Inhabitants of this Province that should be in any manner of way aiding or assisting to the encouraging of them therein.

This House does agree to the third Amendment, that the words (without leave from his proper Officer) be left out, and to the same words in the Paragraph mentioned, and agree to mention the Kings Reign when the A<sup>t</sup> of Parliament, mentioned in the said Bill, was made.

Ordered,

That Mr. Wessels and Mr. Van Ecklen carry up the said Bill, with the said Amendments.

There was another Bill for granting to his Majesty one Thousand Pounds, &c. in which he perceived there was a Complement paid to himself, for which he was thankful; but in regard that he found it not consistent with his Honour to pass it, he did likewise, by the advice of the Council, reject it; And gave this House assurance, That as he had studied the ease and safety of the Province, so he would continue to manifest the same at all times. And that he understood there had been great dissatisfaction about the Accounts, and recommended
